TRUST DID CONSUMER BENEFIT

—John D. Archbold.

Crushed Small Dealers for Philanthropic Purposes, Says Oil Manager.

JUST CHARITY TO DO SO

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—John D. Archbold made the remarkable statement on the witness stand today during his examination before Referee Perris in the Government suit to dissolve the Standard Oil Company that the trust had crushed the small dealer as a philanthropic measure for the benefit of the consumer.

Other statements of Archbold, made in all seriousness in response to questions put by the Standard Oil lawyer, were to the effect that practically all the activities of the trust were for the benefit of some one else other than the trust.

The buying out of independent producers was for their benefit, declared Archbold, as it regulated the business just as the annihilation of the small dealer had.

"Curse of the Trade."

"The curse of the oil business" was what Mr. Archbold termed wildcatting, or less technically called the drilling of wells in a new field, where the uncertainty of finding oil is very great. The witness then told of a proposition to him some years ago by a business man, who thought it a good scheme to drill for oil in Europe.

"I told him," said Mr. Archbold, "that I would guarantee to drink all the oil he might get in that particular locality."

Following his testimony adjournment was taken till Monday.

Mr. Archbold arrived in the hearing room ten minutes after the hour set for the opening of the session. Moultie Rosenthal, the Chicago attorney for the Oil Trust, continued his questioning.

The attorney first had Mr. Archbold describe the marketing situation of the oil business from the time of the organization of the Standard Oil Trust in 1882. At that time, the witness said, the 84 and oil trust had about 136 marketing stations.

How Oil Trade Grew.

He said that oil in the early days reached the consumer largely through jobbers and general merchants, the manufacturer selling to the jobber and the jobber to the consumer. The oil was stored in the Standard in barrels in all the large cities of the country. The cities in which the oil was stored had increased from 150 in 1880 to 233 in 1888. In 1906, the Standard had 3,573 of these stations.

Mr. Archbold at the request of Mr. Rosenthal gave a statistical history of the production of crude oil in Pennsylvania from 1870 to 1874. In 1870, he said, the production of crude oil in Pennsylvania was 5,260,745 barrels. In 74 it was 9,205,234 barrels.

In 1872 it was 6,260,194. In 1873 it was 9,893,786 barrels. In 1874 it was 10,926,945. The maximum production of crude oil in Pennsylvania, he said, was reached in 1891, when it totalled 33,990,236 barrels. The production of crude oil in West Virginia in 1893, according to the witness, was 4,812,218. The maximum from West Virginia was reached in 1900, when the production was 16,195,575 barrels.

Mr. Rosenthal then asked him to give the respective production in Pennsylvania from 1892 to 1901. In 1892 the Pennsylvania production was 28,422,377 barrels, Mr. Archbold said. That of West Virginia was 4,810,681. In 1893 the Pennsylvania production was 20,314,513 barrels, and that of West Virginia 8,455,412. In 1894 Pennsylvania produced 19,019,900 and West Virginia 8,377,624.

200 LIVES LOST IN FIRE AT SEA

Steamship Sardinian Burned Off Coast of Malta and Most of Passengers and Crew Perish.

MALTA, Nov. 25.—Most of the 255 passengers and crew of the Liverpool liner Sardinia of the Papanganni Ellerman line lost their lives when the steamer caught fire a mile from shore and finally had to be beached this afternoon.

It is believed that fully 200 lives were lost.

Up to 5 o'clock twenty-eight bodies have been washed ashore.

It is known that not more than 200 passengers were on board the Sardinia. Most of these boarded the steamer at Malta. When the Sardinia left Liverpool on November 14, with a cargo of general merchandise, she carried a crew of forty-four, but no passengers.

People on shore in the city saw the steamer suddenly burst aflame. For awhile heavy mist shut her from view.

The blaze appeared to have occurred from an explosion of the vessel's boilers, so rapidly did it spread. The passengers, a few moments afterward, could be seen leaping overboard.

The captain immediately turned his vessel toward the shore and with what little headway he had left, managed to beach her. Passengers continued to leap over board as the vessel proceeded in shore.

Tugs started for the steamer from the harbor as soon as the flames were discovered, but they were unable to get near her because of the intense heat.

The steamer, which plies between Liverpool, Malta and Alexandria, had on board some 200 passengers, twenty-five or thirty of them English, and carried a crew of fifty-five.

The steamer had hardly cleared the harbor entrance when smoke was observed issuing from the cargo hold.

Almost before the crew had disappeared below decks to fight the flames the forward hatch seemed to explode, and in an instant the vessel was ablaze from stern to stern.

A frightful panic followed among the passengers, who had been left to themselves while the crew was fighting the flames.

The boat was beached as quickly as possible, and every effort was made to extinguish the fire. This was impossible, owing to the elements and the inflammable nature of the cargo.

AUTO RACERS DARE DEATH IN DENSE FOG

BUT CLEARING WEATHER FAVORS CONTESTANTS OVER GEORGIA COURSE.

RACE TRACK, SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 25.—A fog as dense as to prevent any reasonable or adequate view of the course did not make fast driving seem any less dangerous, confronted the spectators of and the contestants in the light car race today, as the motors were sent away. It was not a local fog, but extended all along the coast line and those who had figured on fifty miles an hour in the contest commenced to revise their books.

The two great grandstands, seating 16,000 persons were filled long before the first car was sent away, and great interest was centred in the preparatory work of the contestants.

It was exactly 11 o'clock that the S. P. O., driven by O'Connor, was given the word. Half a minute later, Hilliard, in the Lancia, one of the prime favorites, got away. Then came Bergdoll, the Philadelphia amateur, driving a Chalmers. Caminon was the next away, then in order came Al Poole, in a Baier Isotta, Burman in a Buick, Bee in a Maxwell, Lorimer in a Chalmers, Hearne in a Buick, Costello in a Maxwell, Burns in a Chalmers, Easter in a Buick, Muenzeiter in a Maxwell, Jeffers in a Buick, Kelsey in a Maxwell.

The cars were sent away at half minute intervals and all got away in good order.

As soon as the cars got under way the sun broke through the heavy fog, clearing up the mist and giving every one an unobstructed view of the entire straightaway as well as making it possible for the next to make faster time.

In the very first lap Easter, in the Buick, jumped into first place, going 37 seconds on Hilliard, in the Lancia, who had second place. Burman, in the Buick, was in third position, Walle Loerner, in the Chalmers, finished fourth. These are unquestionably the strong favorites. Hilliard and Loerner were evidently taking things easy, although they were making an average of 53 miles an hour.

In the second lap Burman, in the Buick, was audited by the timers in doing the hour. This gave him the first place. While trying to make fast going on the Montgomery road, Burns, in the Chalmers, hit a tree, turning completely over, wrecking his car, but not injuring himself seriously.

At thirty miles Burman was still in the lead, with Hilliard pushing him hard for first place.

At the fifty-mile mark Burman was leading Hilliard by slightly over two minutes. The Buick was travelling at top speed, while Hearne turns on two wheels, which has been heard from the S. P. O. since she completed her first lap, is now making twenty miles in the race. Jeffries in the third Buick was off the track.

In the tenth lap Daly made a great change in the leadership. Hilliard going to the fore, regaining the time he had lost to Burman. Hilliard made up a minutes and at the end of 3 Hilliard was traveling faster than at any previous part of the contest. Loerner had jumped into fourth place, and was at this time over half the distance of the race, less than a minute from second position. Hearne had taken fourth place.

Jumped to the Fore.

Up to this time the Maxwell mosquito fleet had been steady as clocks. Burglund was in fourth place.

When Burns ran into the tree on the Montgomery course he received no more serious injuries than having three teeth knocked out of his mouth.

On the eleventh lap Hilliard stopped at his quarters for supplies and Burman again got going again in the front, Hilliard losing some, but not all of his advantage.

It was a pretty sight to see five cars come down the stretch at once, they being Hilliard, Lorimer, Kelsey, Easter, the four rushing each other every inch of the way.

The boy received a bad gash in his head and was taken to the City Hospital, where he had his wound dressed. Miss Lyons was painfully hurt. The carriage overturned, throwing both her and the child into the street.

STOCKS ADVANCE TO NEW HIGH RECORDS

By Thomas C. Shotwell.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Preparations by the Southern Pacific Company to convert its preferred stock into common caused a sharp advance in the entire stock market today. The advance really began last night, but London continued it, and when the market opened in New York prices were at an average of a point above the closing figures of yesterday.

Union and Southern Pacific were leaders in the activity and in points gained. Both sold at new high records in the activity, the former at 184⅜ and the latter at 120⅝. In spite of heavy realizing they maintained this advance throughout the early trading. Consolidated Gas was conspicuous, with another advance to 155, which is a new high record.

General belief is that the company has paid assurances from Washington that it has won its suit for dissolution. If the company wins this suit Consolidated Gas will sell at about 225 a year from the date the decision is rendered. It is worth that to-day even with several cuts. The stock has been depressed by manipulation in the hope of bringing in buying orders.

Copper stocks participated in the advance to-day very generally. Amalgamated and Anaconda being the chief features. Copper stocks on the curb were also more active and recovered from their recent depression. In spite of the low price of silver metal the silver stocks were active and in good demand around high prices, especially Lacosse and Nipissing, which have been thoroughly established as investment issues on a dividend basis.

ROOSEVELT LAUDS GENIUS OF SHERIDAN

Cavalry Leader's Record Difficult to Parallel, He Says at Dedication.

MONUMENT AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—In his address here today at the unveiling of the equestrian monument to Lieutenant General Philip Sheridan, President Roosevelt said that the life of the man who more than any other in our history typifies the dash, enthusiasm is a question of purpose, of decision, of character; that it is not a matter of birthplace or creed, or line of descent."

Then he foreshadowed the coming American, saying:

"Here in this country the representatives of many old-world types are being fused together into a new one, a type the main features of which are already determined, and were determined at the time of the Revolutionary war.

"The strains will not continue to exist separately in this country, as in the old world. They will be combined, and the type of this new type those men will best represent who is honest in the nation's good, who is fearless and resolute in its defense, who stand ready to do the nation's work, but who refuse to submit to wrongdoing from anyone, while they scorn to do wrong themselves; who never fear to fight when fighting is necessary, and who yet shrink from needless war; who hate to bring over neither the dag which represents tyranny to others or to our own people, and in our relations with all mankind."

High on America's List.

A large delegation of the Grand Army of the Republic, many high officials and representatives of many distinguished societies were present at the unveiling and dedication ceremony.

"I am glad indeed to take part in the unveiling of this statue to General Sheridan," said Secretary Taft, "for his name will always stand high on the list of American soldiers.

"Not only was he a great general, but he showed in his character the best traits of originality and courage and daring. It does not require a knowledge to his reputation for it was known to all the world by its ability. We need to think of him as he the dashing cavalry leader, but also as he was the great commander.

"Of course the fact is generally most readily recognized was his mastery in the necessary motion of the cavalry in the use of modern cavalry as to secure the most fullest possible effect from the extraordinary operations of cavalry, the surprise and follow up that is necessary to use it well. But in addition he showed in the Civil War that he had the qualities of a commander, both as subordinate and superior, which independently of cavalry proved in the Valley campaign and afterward from Five Forks to Appomattox, would have placed him in military history.

"After the close of the great struggle he held command in the military division which was by the general himself, he pondered and wrote about, and which he himself considered was in the military wears Indian wars and it was during that period that he developed in thoroughgoing fashion that splendid capacity for organization which at the close of bitter hardships and perils finally won for the United States those formidable warriors, the horse Indians.

Risked Life For Union.

"He career was typically American, for from early boyhood to the end of his days he set military position in our land. We honor his memory itself; and moreover, as in the case of the other great soldiers of his day, his other symbolizes the careers of those men of the North and of the nation's direct need springs to the front to risk everything, including life itself, and to spend the days of their strongest, young manhood in valorous conflict for an ideal.

"When we Americans are taunted with having only a materialistic ideal. The ready folly of the taunt is sufficiently shown by the presence here today of representatives of the Grand Army, you the comrades of the dead general, the men who fought with him and under him. In all history we have no greater testimony to the nobility of the self, of the existing of a lofty ideal over merely material well-being among the people of a great nation, than was shown by our people in the Civil War.

"And you, the men who were the blue, would be the first to scout that the time's lofty indifference to the things of the body, when need arose, to the things of the spirit was shown by your brothers who were the gray.

"There is another point in General Sheridan's career which it is good for all of us to remember. Whereas Grant, Sherman and Thomas were of the old native American stock, the descendants of Sheridan, like the parents of Farragut, were born on the other side of the ocean. And one of the five was just as much a type of the real American, of what is best in America, by the church pastor the A. Z. Conrad.

Independent Company of Boston to Apply Principle of Decision in Ohio.

RESTRAIN BELL CONCERN

Having received the full text of the sweeping injunction issued to Judge Taylor of the United States Court at Cleveland, Ohio, against the American Telephone & Telegraph Company (Bell Long Distance) System on last Saturday, the officers and principal shareholders of the Metropolitan Home Company of this city are today confident that they can have the same principle applied in their long-drawn out fight against the Bell people in this section of the country. It was said at their offices that the Cleveland injunction would be used as a precedent in case they were finally compelled to carry their fight to the courts.

Judge Taylor's injunction restrains the Bell company and its various subsidiaries from interfering with the business of the United States Telephone Company, which is the independent long-distance company operating in Ohio and adjoining States. Action against the Bell company was brought under the Sherman Anti-Trust law, in its power for the injunction the independent company declared that the Bell people had, by absorption, merger, consolidation, division and subdivision of officers, attempted to eliminate competition and establish a monopoly in the telephone service of the country, at the same time refusing to extend its system into thinly settled districts. From the reports of one of the Bell superintendents, it was stated that that company pursued the policy of doing a small business with high rates and big profits, rather than trying to serve the public at reasonable rates.

It was also charged that upon the competition of the independents began, the Bell company started competing lines, operating them at ruinous rates and sometimes giving free service in full of competitors.

The injunction granted, it was said at the offices of the Metropolitan Home Company in this city today, not only restrains the Bell people from bludgeoning other companies from making contracts entered into with the United States Company, but also restrains the Bell and its subsidiary companies from circulating misleading reports concerning the financial standing of that company, a thing which, it was alleged, an agent of the Bell's had been doing through "faked stock letters."

A. K. Beerle of Olds & Beerle, president of the Boston company, Bernard M. Wolf, clothier, of this city, its vice-president, and James G. Ferguson of Ferguson, Parkes & Company, the company now called a bond of $50,000 with the city treasurer as security, as evidence of their faith and intention to do business, and it is incorporated at $100,000 under the laws of this State.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.....

SPECIAL BALLOT PLAN EASIEST WAY TO VOTE

Here you are, boys and girls of Greater Boston, a fine opportunity to do something for your Sunday School teacher!

It won't cost you anything, and it will not take much of your time. It's just this: Enter your Sunday School teacher's name in the BOSTON AMERICAN European Tour contest and then help her to win one of the thirty-six grand tours of Europe which the BOSTON AMERICAN will give next season to the thirty-six most popular teachers of Boston and suburbs.

That interests EVERY ONE OF YOU, doesn't it?

A great majority, perhaps, of the boys and girls of Greater Boston under sixteen years of age are, I suppose, members of some teacher naturally is his FAVORITE SUNDAY SCHOOL teacher. Just as with the girls. What boy or girl, therefore, wouldn't like to see her teacher to be one of the thirty-six to go to Europe?

Best Trip on Record.

Here are the facts about the contest:

Several hundred Sunday school teachers are already entered, and none of them has yet polled such a heavy vote that it could not be outdone by a new candidate with VERY LITTLE EFFORT.

The date on which the contest will close has not yet been decided. The itineraries of the great tours have not been completed, but they will be the best that experts can plan or money can buy. Nothing for the comfort and enjoyment of the tourists from the time they leave Boston until they return will be overlooked.

There will be four tours for the winning thirty-six teachers. The four teachers in each of the nine voting districts having the largest number of votes to their credit when the contest ends will go. Not one teacher from each district, remember, but FOUR TEACHERS.

A Tip to the Boys and Girls.

Each teacher with the highest number of votes will go on the Grand Tour, visiting every place of any consequence in the Old World.

Then there will be three other tours, not as elaborate as the Grand Tours, which will be for the other teachers. Here is how the boys and girls of Greater Boston can play an important part in the election:

First—Enter the name of your Sunday School teacher in the contest, if she has not already been entered.

Second—Collect ballots for her from the daily and the Sunday AMERICAN.

Third—Get your parents, relatives, friends and neighbors to subscribe for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN for thirty weeks, sending all subscriptions and money for advance payment to the European Tour Department.

Fourth—Work hard for subscriptions of thirty weeks each. They cost only $1.50, including five cents apiece for papers, the same as they cost every Sunday on the streets or at news stands.

3,000 Votes for Little Work.

For every thirty weeks' subscription received from any boy or girl, or any adult, for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN will give 3,000 extra ballots, FREE. The person sending the subscription will be entitled to cast those EXTRA BALLOTS for any teacher he or she desires.

That's a good proposition, boys and girls, isn't it? Why not start right away and get all your extra regular ballots and EXTRA BALLOTS you can secure for your favorite Sunday School teacher before next Saturday?

YOUR effort to-day may be the means of sending your favorite Sunday School teacher on a FREE VACATION TOUR next season on a FREE VACATION —one of the finest vacations any Sunday School teacher in the country ever enjoyed.

"TRY IT!"

BROWN AND HOLY CROSS.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 25.—Brown and Holy Cross will resume athletic relations after a suspension of three years. Baseball and basketball date has been offered the Worcester rolle and the understanding is they will accepted

THE SPECIAL BALLOT

Every time a Special Ballot is cast in the European Tour contest on and after Monday, it will count 3,000 votes for some candidate.

One Special Ballot, good for 3,000 votes, will be given with every paid-in-advance subscription of thirty weeks to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Special Ballots will win the election, not votes. In a short time nearly all the voting will be done by Special Ballot.

Candidates and friends of all candidates are invited to call at the European Tour department and ask for information about the Special Ballot method of voting.

FALLS FROM LADDER.

Charles Thompson to-day fell forty feet from a ladder in the shop of the Medford Morrison Machinery Company at Tamworthport, where he is employed as a machinist, and broke his right arm, sustained several bad scalp wounds. He is thirty-six years old and lives at No. 29 DeWolf street, Cambridge.

MISSIONARY'S WIFE PRAISES CUTICURA

Daughter's Head Encrusted with Dandruff—Feared she Would Lose her Hair—Many Treatments were Futile—Baby had Milk-Crust.

BOTH CHILDREN CURED BY FAMOUS REMEDIES

"For several years my husband was a missionary in the Southwest, and we were living on the edge of the desert at an elevation of nearly five thousand feet. Every one in that high and dry atmosphere has more or less trouble with dandruff and my daughter's scalp became so encrusted with it that I was alarmed for fear she would lose all her hair, which was very heavy. After spending between five and six dollars for various remedies, in desperation I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. After rubbing the Cuticura Ointment thoroughly into the roots of the hair, I gently combed the crust of dandruff off from the scalp, and then gave her head a thorough shampoo with the Cuticura Soap. This left the scalp beautifully clean and free from dandruff, and after the hair was dry I again rubbed the Cuticura Ointment, this time sparingly, into the roots, and I am happy to say that the Cuticura Remedies were a complete success. My troubles with dandruff were over, although for a long time afterward I used the Cuticura Ointment as at first, after shampooing, which kept the scalp and roots of the hair moist. I have used successfully the Cuticura Remedies for so-called "milk-crust" on baby's head, and have never found anything to equal them. You are at liberty to publish this letter, for I do sincerely believe that the Cuticura Remedies are a blessing to mankind. Mrs. J. A. Darling, 310 Fifth St., Carthage, Ohio, Jan. 20, 1908."

Cuticura Ointment is one of the most successful curatives for torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin and scalp, including loss of hair, ever compounded. A proof of which a single anointing with it, preceded by a hot bath with Cuticura Soap, and followed, when necessary, by a mild dose of Cuticura Resolvent (liquid or pills) is often sufficient to afford immediate relief of itching, burning and scaly humors, eczemas, irritations and inflammations, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy cure when all else fails.

SOUND THANKS FROM BELFRY OF PARK STREET

Hurrying shoppers and pedestrians in the vicinity of the Park Street Subway on Tremont street and along Tremont, Boylston and crowded the thoroughfare at noon today when the strains of "Home, Sweet Home" and "Old Folks at Home" floated from the belfry of the Park Street church. Five young organists, all pupils of the High School—Samuel and Victor Legro, W. G. Mims, Jos. Lee and Harold Kruleo—rendered the music which could be heard for blocks in all directions from the street as the Tourists.

The music was given as a prelude to the celebration of Thanksgiving, and is the second time that such music has been played from the belfry. The other occasion was the playing of Yankee Doodle and other airs on the centenary of the author Rev. Samuel F. Smith.

After the playing from the belfry the five boys played a half dozen other selections from the church proper which was presided over by the church pastor the A. Z. Conrad.

As a Philanthropist.

The witness said that the total refinery consumption last year was about 72,000,000 barrels. Then the witness outlined a number of refineries that had consumed upwards of 10,000,000 barrels in 1882. He stated that the aggregate value of Standard refineries in 1882 was $17,000,000. Mr. Archbold then took up the refineries owned and acquired by the Standard, explaining their location and giving expert views as to where a refinery ought to be located.

According to the testimony given late in the morning Mr. Archbold placed the Standard on the basis of a philanthropist. He told how extortion was blocked and said that greedy pokers have been prevented from boosting prices following the early trust agreement.

By-Product Revenues.

Mr. Archbold told of great revenues from by-products of oil, and when Attorney Rosenthal showed him a list of commodities having their source in crude petroleum, he exclaimed:

"Goodness, that list is astounding!"

At this point Mr. Rosenthal said that he had produced a report where he wanted to look up the trust agreement of 1882, and would take a great deal of time to go through an adjournment. Accordingly the hearing was adjourned until Monday morning. Prosecutor Kellogg offered no objection.

ARCHBOLD WINS ON BUCKWHEAT CAKES AND SAUSAGES

"I am not a philosopher like Mr. Rockefeller," said Archbold. "He sets the standard of limitations upon his stomach. I never limited myself on buckwheat cakes and sausages into mine.

"It's a good diet, too. I see the government scientists have found that the consumers of buckwheat cakes and sausage will outgrow the world. Anyway my digestion is fine."

BIKE SPRINT KINGS MEET IN BIG RACE

The holiday bike card at the Park Square Coliseum track will be a sprinting duel between Iver Lawson, the winner of the six-day race, and Jackie Clarke, who has a rightful claim for the world's championship since he beat Kramer last Summer.

There is no question of Clarke holding the title of Australia and he made an impression in the recent six-day grind, being picked as the winner till a fumble put him out of it in the last mile.

These sprint finals will meet in three-cents at a half mile, mile, and third to be decided by heats.

All the star professionals who were recently in the long race will be on hand in the mile open handicap. The amateur events are also spectacular and some of the outsiders have entered to compete with the local stars.

HEAVY TRAFFIC ON RAILROAD LINES

The rush of Thanksgiving travel crowded all outgoing and incoming Boston trains today. The heavy traffic is expected to continue morning and evening. The Boston & Albany had extra coaches on nearly all regular trains today, and also special trains minutes ahead of the noon and 4 o'clock express to New York. Westbound trains made special stops at Wellesley to pick up Wellesley College students homeward bound over Thanksgiving. The New York, New Haven & Hartford expresses to New York were crowded. The Boston & Maine had extra cars on also for the holiday rush.

BOSTON ELEVATED

To Our Patrons:—

The use of the Washington Street tunnel will greatly augment the facilities for transportation and its kindred conveniences which our system already provides, but the removal of the elevated trains from the subway to this tunnel (required by law) will necessarily involve many changes, both with respect to the elevated trains themselves and to the routes of surface cars. These changes will be of great advantage to the majority of our patrons, but during the transition period there will be undoubtedly some annoying incidents. The officials of the Company will do everything feasible to make things run smoothly, but the Company asks the cooperation of its patrons, and a further share of that consideration with which they have favored the Company in the past, and which the Company has been glad to reciprocate. When the changes have been made, and both passengers and employes have become accustomed to them, facilities will be much superior to those now existing.

Changes

After the withdrawal of elevated trains from the subway, and during its alteration for the use of surface cars, which will take several days, it will be necessary to discontinue the service between Pleasant Street and Boylston Street. Surface cars will run on tracks hitherto used by elevated trains between Boylston Street and the North Station. Passengers wishing to go beyond the North Station should transfer at that point to elevated trains either for Charlestown or for Atlantic Avenue.

BRIDE GIVES UP ALL TO BE NEAR JAILED HUBBY

MAN NOW ON PRISON SHIP

The naval prisoners at Portsmouth Navy Yard now include a distinguished scientific in the scandalous of the late Senator Arthur P. Gorman of Maryland, who was convicted of desertion from the navy and recently sentenced by court martial at Philadelphia. The prisoner is Charles J. Hartlove, alias C. J. Magness.

Hartlove, as he was known in the navy, is a native of Baltimore and is credited with quite a career. He entered the service of the navy in 1901 as first class musician, and was assigned to the band on the President's dispatch boat Dolphin.

In July he deserted, and his departure was followed by the sensational marriage to Miss Ada P. Gorman.

Woman Told Hiding Place.

Then another woman appeared on the scene, a young lady employed in a laundry at Baltimore, who declares she was engaged to Magness. She wrote the Navy Department, giving the facts of the case, adding and where she thought the government could find the man.

The department then offered a reward, and in October the detectives arrested Magness at Long Beach, N. Y., while he and his bride were entering an apartment house.

When searched by the officers, he had $10,000 in cash and a bank book. It is thought he was arranging to get out of the country, having brought his ex-League Island navy yard and were again surprised in searching him to find $6,000 in money. He was placed in the brig to await trial and while there he furnished information for the several other prisoners awaiting trial. He also had diamonds and jewelry worth several thousand dollars.

At the court martial hearing it developed that the groom was known to the navy by Hartlove, which was fictitious, and married under false pretenses.

Evidence of one year was imposed and his trip from Philadelphia to Portsmouth was far from that of other prisoners. He was chained to a civilian guard, a naval guard, Warrant officer Albert E. Moore. They traveled in a parlor car and had best of everything and Magness furnished the money.

Wife to Be Near Him.

Arriving at Portsmouth, they planned to send on any attention, and, instead of making the trip to the navy yard in a ferry at assigned to the transportation of prisoners, the party landed at the navy yard and were soon on the road across a bridge leading to the prison ship, Southery and Indiana. Trolley cars were under construction about the navy yard with the rest of the country and will be kept busy in this way.

Magness can reduce his sentence to eight years by good behavior and may bring down to six months by doing clerical work or by mechanical work or fill the duties of engineer.

His wife will stick to him until he is a free man again and will live in Portsmouth to be near him. Efforts to get him an honorable navy will allow her.

It is understood a petition with signatures of many prominent and influential men in his native city of Baltimore will be forwarded to President Roosevelt, asking a pardon for Magness.

OWN WAR ON VATER METERS

Residents of Arlington after three years just waking up to the fact that they have been buying water meters from the men of Arlington and paying nearly for their own property. The matter will be brought to the attention of the Board of Selectmen.

The town authorities plead that they buy water supplies only after long years, but not give a satisfactory answer why they sold private water plants to the town to get their own.

The matter started when a resident of a town had a water meter installed recently and paid for it only to find up his bill a charge for rental on the meter. He was supposed to own.

MORGAN MAKES DUMMY LOANS, SAYS LAWYER

In Jenkins Trust Company Trial Offers to Prove Such Is the Custom of Bankers.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—"I can show by absolute proof that it is the custom of bankers and brokers throughout the united verse to make loans to dummies employed in their institutions. I can prove beyond a doubt that J. P. Morgan has made loans in this manner and is doing the same thing to-day. It is a universal practice for bankers and brokers to make loans in this fashion. If they did not do it they could not carry on their business." J. P. Morgan has not made loans to the "dummies" in his banking house, his business could not be carried on in that manner.

This startling statement was made today by James B. Baldwin in court at the opening of the trial of John G. Jenkins, Jr., before Justice Bischoff, of the Jenkins Trust Company, was recalled to the witness stand. Cross-examined by Lawyer Baldwin for the defense. No senior had Conklin taken his seat in the chair than Lawyer Baldwin, much to the surprise of the spectators, among whom were many financial men, opened with the question: Mr. Conklin, asked: Is it not a custom, Mr. Conklin, for bankers and brokers to give and secure loans by means of "dummy" clerks employed in their institutions?

Lawyer Attorney Conklin, who is prosecuting Jenkins, jumped to his feet and strongly objected. He maintained that the United States Supreme Court decided years ago during the appeal of the bankers' gang of Fish and Ward, of which the late President Grant was a member, that this custom by firms was a violation of the constitution.

Lawyer Baldwin then made his remarkable statement in which he said he could prove that J. P. Morgan and other firms made loans to "dummies" employed in their banking houses.

HEIRS OPPOSE BARD OF HIGH ROCK'S WILL

Mrs. John W. Hutchinson, widow of the famous bard of High Rock, Lynn, along with the other heirs to the property, have decided to oppose the claims to the will of John W. Hutchinson whereby they would be compelled to wait for fifteen years for their money. Mrs. Hutchinson says that after that time she would be more than a middle-aged woman.

At a conference held to-day between Lawyer Albert Harrington, counsel for the heirs at law, and Attorney Walter W. Paige of John, representing Mrs. Hutchinson, it was decided to appeal to the Probate Court if they failed to strike out that portion of the will which prevents a distribution of the estate for fifteen years.

Mrs. Hutchinson, under the terms of the will, will likely get about $25,000 or $30,000 of the estate when paid in. She is divided between a nonchalant's daughter. This, it is claimed, gives those children, who were the other heirs.

TAUNTON'S MAYOR'S DECREE STANDS

The full bench of the Supreme Court today, in a decision handed down, denies the petition of James P. Dunn and William B. Greenhalgh for a peremptory writ of mandamus against Mayor Edgar L. Cresse an of Taunton. The two petitioners were removed from the Board of Sewer Commissioners by the Mayor for neglecting to take action to compel sewer connections. The petition was upon that the finding of the Mayor was unwarranted and insufficient for their removal. They appealed to a single justice of the Supreme Court for a writ, but were denied. The Supreme Court upholds the decision of the single justice.

ASK STORROW AND BROCK TO STAND AGAIN

Latter Willing to Run for the Board If Head of Committee Will Consent.

If James J. Storrow consents to be a candidate for re-election to the School Committee, the Public School Association ticket for school committee will be James J. Storrow and George E. Brock. Mr. Brock has said that he will accept a renomination if Mr. Storrow will stand with him. Mr. Storrow is said to be undecided.

Representatives of the Democratic and Republican city committees and the Public School Association are to-day endeavoring to persuade Mr. Storrow to stand for re-election. An effort is being made also to persuade Mr. Brock to run again, even if Mr. Storrow is not a candidate.

The Ward 4 ticket, in the event of Storrow's refusal and Brock's consent, will be Brock and Robert A. Woods, a member of the association said to-day.

A member of the Republican City Committee to-day said that if the P. R. A. ticket is "Storrow and Brock" or "Brock and Woods" the Republicans will nominate the P. S. A. ticket. The "Vogel and Allen ticket" stirred agreed upon yesterday has been abandoned by the Republicans.

Leaders of the Democratic city machine said that they would support Storrow. They would not discuss the Brock candidacy. An effort will be made to give one of the Democratic nominations to Joseph A. Sheehy of Ward 9. Party leaders to-day said that the Sheehan candidacy would be weakened if Woods, also a Ward 9 resident, were indorsed by the Republicans and the Public School Association.

It became known to-day that friends of Mrs. Julia A. Duff, a former member of the School Committee, are planning a spring her name in the Democratic Convention in Faneuil Hall Friday night. The Duff supporters are endeavoring to keep their plan a secret for fear that their opponents may offset it.

School Committee nominations will be considered next Friday night by the Democratic, Republican and Independence city committees. The Democratic committee will elect a committee of twenty-five to make nominations. Rumor to-day had it that the Democrats may do the same.

MRS. SAMPSON COOLLY FACES DEATH CHARGE

MAKES NO STATEMENT

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Mrs. Georgia Allyn Sampson, the young widow of Hugh Sampson, nephew of the late Admiral, sits to-day in a cell in the Wayne County Jail formerly occupied by Frederick Rehfuss, a murderer. Over in the big, hospitable Allyn home, two miles from Macedon, where Harry Sampson met his death from a rifle shot Nov. 1, Frank D. Allyn, father of the young widow, is in the hillside of a dying wife, the mother of the girl.

This will kill mother," said Frank Allyn, when the Sheriff arrived with the warrant charging Mrs. Sampson with murder. "She suffered deeply from the deliberate lingering and desperate attempt to kill me, and I thought it would kill her certainly when this trouble first came. But I can stand it. I've had heart disease, you know. And I know I had to keep up my strength for her sake."

This from the big, burly, six-foot farmer, Allyn, the chief witness upon whom rests the whole of the case against the young woman who is charged with the murder of her husband. Allyn's testimony before the Grand Jury in Canandaigua will be the most damaging evidence against Mrs. Sampson and paving the way for the arrest of Miss Allyn.

Accused Woman Unmoved.

Developments in the case came thick and fast, but the widow sat unmoved. Sheriff "Jerry" Collins was at the County Jail awaiting in Marcus Allyn with his daughter Theresa, who previously had arranged for young Mrs. Sampson to be arrested her. Coroner Jennings subpoenaed prospective jurors and Sheriff Collins and the village dances are held and where Mrs. Allyn, the petted darling of the county farmer for miles around, young, rich and beautiful, and Mrs. Sampson, accused and a dashing dancer in the Macedonia Tuesday Club, was at the height of her social fame. Hinds the time of the shot was fired there between eleven and the District-Attorney charges with murder. Directly in front of the house the path parted with leaves on the left and a good reception here on Wednesday evening.

But from the time the hearing was opened in the court house in the village of the jail she never shed a tear. She spoke to no one, she appeared calm and composed and unmoved by the charges against her. She sat in the cell with her head bowed, and time will clear this all up."

Smiles at Testimony.

She scarcely raised her eyes during the day. Even when her in the hall at Macedon sat George A. Sampson, brother of the murdered and father of her husband. There was no recognition on his face. Mrs. Sampson was dressed in a neat fitting black suit, with a black hat and black leather shoes, a black hat and a long black veil. She was expected to be called by the authorities was indicated by the fact that Sheriff Collins was with a big bunch of flowers, with the request that she thing to the young widow. "Please give these to Mrs. Sampson," said Collins, "I will send them to her."

Attorney George S. Tabbutt, formerly of Palmyra, Mrs. Sampson's attorney, had a consultation with Assemblyman Edson C. Hinds, of Lyons, a criminal lawyer, to-day. Hinds is associated with ex-District Attorney Joseph Gilbert, calculating and experienced in such matters. Strategy there were to be, and the defense is associated with the case.

Ex-District Attorney unrolled a long piece of wrapping paper and produced the knife with which he killed Harry Sampson and underskirt are smeared on the knife. The blood-soaked bedding will be shown, but showed no emotion. She even when a witness became confused. But Frank Allyn's father, was seated at the gun and the bloody garments with a view to identification.

When Mrs. Sampson was called she walked with a steady step.

It becomes impanelled duty," said the prosecution. "I am glad that the evidence of this hideous deeply establishes, so far as this hearing is concerned, that Mrs. Sampson, did not take his own life, but that she killed him. I am glad the hands of some other person, and it is also proper to state to you that the evidence given by the prosecution points to you as being that other person."

Mrs. Sampson did not flinch. But her father, Frank D. Allyn, who, shrunk behind the stove and buried his face in his hands.

Declines to Testify.

The District Attorney asked if she would take the witness stand, but, coached by counsel, she replied that she "declined to be the advice of my counsel I decline to be sworn or make any statement in regard to the matter at this time." She was then committed to the jail.

The hearing was adjourned to Lyons by the Grand Jury. Again she took the witness seat and this was a delicate move to notice, for she did not have to appear in person simply as a witness at Lyons, as stated with the other witnesses. Then she and her father sat two hours in the sheriff's office, a room furnished in handsome and plain mahogany, with the coroner prepared his testimony. Lawyer Harry Sampson, brother of the dead husband, and Lawyer Tabbutt, counsel for the defendant, were also present. The charges that the crime was premeditated and a warrant charging her with first degree murder was then read to the indicted woman by Sheriff Collins. She waived examination, was bound over to the grand jury, and was then taken to the jail. She was assigned to a cell. Later a room will be prepared for her in the sheriff's house.

After the reading of the warrant Mrs. Sampson broke down for a time, and then the aged man wandered like one in a trance to the railroad line and took the car for his desolate home.

THREE BREAKS KEEP CHELSEA POLICE BUSY

Two Saloons and Fruit Store Entered; Safe Left Open to Prevent Wrecking.

Two saloon breaks, a fruit-store break, two arrests and a third arrest on a report sheet of tools kept the Chelsea police busy to-day.

The saloon breaks were made between midnight and dawn. George Gillings's saloon on Broadway and Arlington street was entered by a rear window. The safe had been left unlocked to save it being forced in case of burglars. A $10 watch and $50 in cash were taken from the safe.

The Bernrose Tavern, William Bernstein's saloon at the corner of Broadway and Williams street, was entered by way of the cellar bulkhead. Liquor and cigars worth $24.50 were taken.

Later in the day Chelsea police arrested Alexander Pierce on charge of making the tavern break. Pierce was held in $1,000 bail for the Superior Court and obtained bonding November 20.

Pierce went through a series of questions the police went by Martin Lynch's house at 10 o'clock last night. They found $8 worth of cigars which they say were part of the tavern and saloon plunder. Cigars was locked on, charged Lynch with receiving stolen goods. He comes into court in the morning.

Meanwhile Lynch is under a $500 bail bond in a temporary lockup at No. 2 Washington avenue, reported that his wife was arrested by a man who said he was a detective. He did not show his badge. Lynch, who is employed by Fred Merchant and Henry Levine, who also working on the premises.

This afternoon the police arrested George Chevalier of Chelsea on the charge. They say they recovered the tools Chevalier's home at No. 278 Second street.

RICE ACCUSED OF MAIL FRAUD FREED ON BAIL

Insurance Man Faces Charge Preferred By Mrs. Melvin Johnson.

CAUSES STIR IN SOCIETY

Edwin L. Rice, the young insurance man arrested on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud through a series of letters to Mrs. Melvin M. Johnson of aristocratic Waverley Court in Cambridge, was released from Charles street jail today on bail. He had been in custody since his arrest yesterday afternoon in default of bail.

At 1 o'clock to-day Federal Commissioner Hayes accepted surety furnished by Benjamin A. Hall, whose office is at No. 60 State street, with residence at No. 91 Bay State road. Rice took a trolley to Needham.

Rice, who protested vigorously against the dispatch, was arrested on his landing at the Adams House, where he was engaged in a tryst with Mrs. Johnson and the postal inspectors.

Rice's lawyer hurriedly tried to collect from Mrs. Johnson money to be handed over for the expenses of herself and her cousin on a trip to Europe three years ago.

The postal officials say he overstepped the bounds of his office as an insurance agent when he used the mails in the scheme to defraud the pseudonym, it is said, he signed to letters to the prospective victim as used by Rice.

Melvin M. Johnson, husband of the complainant, was in Chicago on business when he received a telegram from Rice. No statement has been received as yet from Mrs. Johnson beyond the complaint she made with her husband to postal inspectors.

Social Sensation.

The whole affair is creating a tremendous sensation on account of the social prominence of the persons involved. The marriage in which Rice's arrest was effected is the bride's varying stories now told in connection with the case.

Rice is a well-known man about town. He is said now to be worth $100,000, which would be indicated, also, in his purchase of a small Marconi stock recently. He has had money, however, since he left school to enjoy good social connections.

Rice's father, Thomas F. Rice, a former Surveyor, merchant, left $300,000 to Rice and his sister, Mrs. Edith Morgan, wife of Dr. Lewis E. Morgan of Brookline. His estate was left in the hands of a trustee, who lived in Kansas city. Litigation has been pending between the trustee and the heirs, it is said, concerning a considerable sum. Rice has been quoted, however, as saying that he has enough money to live on and has no speculation.

Rice lived for a while in Newport. In 1902 he married Miss Margaret Hazard, daughter of Oliver Perry Hazard. She divorced him last October on the ground of non-support.

Rice has known Mrs. Johnson, the prospective complainant, for several years. She is a notably handsome woman, the wife of Dr. Alvin Miller of Needham. She was a New York girl, on the death of her husband she went to live with her aunt in Needham. There she met Rice. She was married from her aunt's home in Needham to Melvin M. Johnson, the Boston druggist, on June 6, 1907. Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Johnson of Waltham and prominent society people.

Pointed Out by Mrs. Johnson.

Rice was arrested at the Adams House by Deputy United States Marshal James H. Hurley and Postal Inspector Joseph Dodd, who went to the hotel with Mrs. Melvin Johnson, the complainant. The three were shown where they could see Mrs. Johnson, a pretty blonde, enter Rice's room to meet her there. When Rice came in Mrs. Johnson pointed out the officers, arrest him. Rice was promptly taken into custody.

Rice's lawyer, Edward Farrington, commissioner Hayes. He started to explain, but was cut short by the commissioner, who told him he would have plenty of time later to tell his story.

"When do you want a hearing?" asked the commissioner. "I want it now," said Rice's lawyer. "I am ready." Commissioner Hayes would have to be continued to-day, and Rice was taken to Charles street jail in custody.

"I was merely trying to get back a loan to my friend," said Rice to a friend to-day. We have been the best of friends. I was sure I would get the money. I was sure he was too generous with it."

Rice's father died here at No. 80 State street, was told what Rice said. Johnson was not available.

"Humbug!" I dislike talk violently. An investigation would have been good in a case like these statements. I will say, however, that Rice is not a man to do such a thing. He was a fine fellow, a boy of Rice. I am sure he would not do such a thing. I am old enough to be his father and I know him well enough to say he is not the man to do such a thing. He is a friend of mine and I regret the matter very much."

Rice is to appear in the morning before the postal authorities.

WASHING THE HAIR.

Common Soaps and Shampoos Often Do More Harm Than Good.

People might as well look facts in the face and not be humbugged any longer by dangerous and worthless preparations for the hair. The vital point to remember is this: Dandruff is the direct cause of nearly every case of baldness, and is also the principal cause of the awful amount of loss of the hair and scalp. The one thing needed above all other things to overcome dandruff and give the hair the gloss of health is cleanliness. You have got to clean the scalp of scales and dandruff, and you have got to keep the pores of your scalp open before you can hope to have beautiful hair. The sebaceous glands on your head there constantly comes an oily secretion to moisten the scalp and give a gloss to the hair. Floating in the air are millions of fine particles of dust, dirt and disease germs. These settle upon the head, mix with the oily secretions, and in a very short time dandruff and scales are formed. These scales stop up the pores, so that the hair roots are not nourished as they should be. And then the hair becomes sick, dies and falls out. Some people allow all this dirt and disease and filth to accumulate on their heads for weeks or months without washing the scalp and hair. Others wash the head and hair ought to be washed at least once a week, no matter what anybody else tells you to the contrary. But don't make the mistake of using common soaps and shampoos. Common soaps contain too much alkali, and they leave the hair dry and harsh, and they do not leave the scalp in a healthy condition. Improper soaps and shampoos actually do more harm than good. You should use the one thing in all this world which is above suspicion, and that is Wash. It is made Cochin Cocoanut Oil Shampoo and Boracic Acid. This formula is so generally recognized as proper that you are invited to ask any pharmacist you know what he thinks about it. Birt's Head Wash doesn't simply take off the dirt, dandruff, scales and dry grease, but it leaves the scalp soft and moist and the hair fine and glossy. The first time you use Birt's Head Wash you can see an improvement in your hair, and its regular use will help to completely overcome dandruff. You will be astonished how quickly the particles will be found in your head and hair, because nothing takes them out like Birt's Head Wash. Price 50 cents.

Disease Germs, Our Danger

Pure Blood Our Defense

Disease germs assail us on every hand and at all times—when we are awake and when asleep.

We cannot get away from them; but if our blood is pure they cannot do us any harm.

Is it pure?

Your blood is not pure if you have any blood disease or ailment—scrofula, eczema, eruptions, catarrh, rheumatism.

Nor is it pure if you are pale, weak, nervous, or are troubled with loss of appetite or general debility.

You can purify your blood, enrich it, you can make it of the right quality and quantity by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, or Hood's Sarsaparilla in pecular or extraordinary in your case.

TWO WOMEN AS WIDOWS SUE FOR ESTATE

Two women, each claiming to be the legal widow of Benjamin S. Robinson of Quincy, are asking for his estate, valued in the East Cambridge Probate Court.

The women are Mrs. Lizzie B. (French) Robinson of Boston and Mrs. Rose M. (Tarbox) Robinson of Everett.

The whole case hinges on the validity of a divorce decreed by Mr. Justice Lynde Yonkton, S. D., in 1892.

Robinson's first wife was remarried, but until the question of the validity of the South Dakota decree is settled the legal standing of her second husband.

Wed School Teacher.

Mr. Robinson was married at Edgartown in 1874 to Lizzie B. French, who was a school teacher at Quincy just prior to her marriage. Mr. Robinson was a bookkeeper.

They lived happily at Quincy for many years, and Mrs. Robinson, she claims, for practically sixteen. Then they went to Yankton, South Dakota, and secured a divorce. After the divorce they came back to Everett, where he married Rose M. Tarbox, who had been his typewriter when they married in October, 1892, at Albany.

They came back to Everett and lived at No. 9 Forest avenue, where she now lives.

Hearing that Mr. Robinson had secured a divorce, that first wife married a Mr. Gray at Boston in 1896. She left him on morning and the two incidents of Mrs. Hoover obtained by her first husband in South Dakota.

Mr. Robinson died intestate at the age of sixty on June 15, 1908, and on July 6 was immediately appointed administrator of his estate, which amounted to a $4,000 house at No. 9 Forest avenue, Everett, and $1,800 personal property. Nov. 4 he filed an inventory of the estate until April 5, 1908.

Charges Bad Faith.

The first wife did not know that Mr. Robinson was dead until last July.

On investigation, the first wife claims she learned that her first husband's divorce was obtained in bad faith, that she did not receive any notice of the proceedings from the South Dakota courts. She also claims that Mr. Robinson went to South Dakota for the express purpose of obtaining a divorce, and that he did not intend to live there. She claims that she secured the divorce in bad faith, and that under the laws of Massachusetts it is not valid.

OLD ST. MARY'S, ONCE PRIDE OF NAVY, BURNED

Historic Schoolship Sold for Junk to Boston Dealer.

FLAMES ATTRACT CROWD

The historic old two-masted training ship, St. Mary's, used for years by the State of New York as a naval training vessel, was set on fire at Point of Pines to-day and allowed to burn.

After the flames had destroyed the deck work and most of the hull, the charred mass was warped up onto the beach to burn itself out on land.

The old hulk burned well, sending up sheets of flame and broad clouds of smoke, which attracted attention over all East Boston, Chelsea and Revere.

The St. Mary's was purchased for junk from the State of New York by Thomas Butler, the Boston junk dealer. She was brought to North End pier and dismantled of her masts, spars, upper rigging and everything in the way of junk that had any commer. al value. Only the bare bones of the old vessel were left.

Then she was towed to the lower end of Point of Pines and anchored close to the beach, near the mouth of the Saugus River. Cables were fastened to the lower part of the hull so she could be warped up onto the beach after being set afire. The hold was filled with kindlings and everything was ready to-day for the fiery death of the vessel.

At 9:25 Captain E. A. Turner set the kindlings and kerosene blaze in the bow and, then hurrying aft, repeated the trick. In a few minutes flames were shooting high in the air, mingled with great clouds of smoke.

HOSPITAL SHIP RELIEF SAFE, AFIRE IN GALE

MANILA, Nov. 25.—The hospital ship Relief is safe and is proceeding to Manila under own steam after a series of harrowing experiences which for a time threatened her safety.

Leaving Guam in the midst of a howling gale the storm increased in strength until on the eighteenth, it having assumed the proportions of a typhoon, the vessel found so that her engines were disabled, and ordered temporary head to the waves while these were in progress fire broke out in the hold among some baled cottonseed meal and secured but little extinguishing power. The fire was soon under control.

The repairing of the engines, however, was a difficult task, but by means of the hardest kind of work the engineers finally managed to fix things so that a start could be made, although caution had to be observed and speed curtailed. The Relief was reported to-day off Southern Luzon and will reach the harbor to-night or to-morrow.

WOMAN WITH DE SAGAN AS HE WOOED ANNA

PARIS, Nov. 25.—That Prince Helie De Sagan was accompanied by another woman when he came to America to urge Miss Anna Gould to forget her title was charged by Maitre Bonnet, counsel for Count Boni de Castellane, the first husband of Miss Gould, in his suit for the custody of his children and $5,000 "alimony" from his former wife.

Maitre Bonnet made the startling allegation in his closing address to the court today which was a bitter arraignment of the De Sagans throughout.

The entire argument of t Count's attorney was to the effect it t the atmosphere of the De Sagan ho e was not one of the moral tone which would make for the proper upbringing of the Castellane children.

Maitre Bonnet declared that De Sagan was separated from the woman who accompanied him to America only during the marriage negotiations. He said that immediately after the marriage the prince had established her in an apartment in Paris.

This woman, he said, frequently waited for De Sagan in the vicinity of his home and he joined her as soon as he could get away from his wife. The court reserved its decision.

ASSASSINS SPREAD PANIC THROUGH INDIA

CALCUTTA, Nov. 25.—The situation in India has not for many years past shown such a menace of serious uprising. Attacks and attempts on the lives of English men, officials and civilians are of almost daily occurrence.

Lord Minto, the viceroy of India, returned here today from the north to consider measures to cope with the serious disaffection.

Last night a Bengali made an unsuccessful attempt to kill Public Prosecutor Hume with a bomb in a railroad carriage near Azimpura. There were three other Europeans in the carriage. A bomb loaded with dumdum bullets was thrown by the native, but it fell short and exploded outside the carriage. Only one person was injured.

Last Monday night District Superintendent of Police Clough was murdered by a native of Ijanipur.

The native, named Nhowdhury, who on November 7 tried to kill Sir Andrew Henderson Fraser, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, to-day pleaded guilty and was sentenced to imprisonment for ten years.

The attempt to assassinate Sir Andrew Fraser was made on November 7 while he was delivering a lecture at the Y. M. C. A. Nhowdhury rushed up and threw a revolver within a few inches of Sir Andrew's body and pulled the trigger twice. Mr. Bartlett, an Americ n, flung himself on the assailant and prevented him from trying to fire again. Nhowdhury put up a savage fight, striking Bartlett over the several times with the butt of the revolver.

BAKER DEFIES HIS ACCUSERS

Chairman Charles H. Baker, chairman of the Lynn Board of Public Works, today issued the following statement in reply to a report made last night by a special commission which is investigating his board:

"Ex-Mayor Eastham, Ex-Alderman Mc-Donough and Charles H. Jackson are the worst politicians in Lynn. I will refuse to appear before the commission again."

Eastham and McDonough head Jackson and members of a special commission to investigate the affairs of the Board of Public Works. They had charged that Baker, who is director in the Lynn Gas and Electric Light Works, had used his influence as chairman of the board of Public Works to prevent the removal of electric pole opposite the Central Fire Station on Broad street, and that record books of the Board of Public Works were improperly kept.

WOBURN WOMAN CAPTURES DEER IN WILD CHASE

Residents of Woburn today had the excitement of a real deer hunt, and to Mrs. George Hicks of Sturgis street lays the honor of actually capturing a pretty doe which had become entangled in the wire fence surrounding her property.

It was about 9 o'clock this morning when a full grown doe came trotting through the most thickly settled portion of the South End of Woburn, right almost in the heart of residences.

A dozen or so men and boys, employees of the factories, started out after the deer, which fled wildly down the railroad track and right into the Woburn Machine Company's foundry. There the men made a rush for the pretty animal, but the deer vaulted right through a window, smashing the glass and carrying the sash with it. The animal was out again.

Up Main street, over the hill by the Cummings school, and finally got tangled in the fence on the Hicks premises. Mrs. Hicks managed to find a burlap bag and threw it over the deer, and despite its struggles managed to hold it down. She wanted to keep it, but was told that the animal would be killed for fear it might be mad. She stood for that, so she released the deer and it fled toward Horn Pond Mountain.

Many deer have been seen recently in Woburn and only a week ago a young Winchester man killed a fine buck which stood on the tracks near the Wedgemere station for a few minutes. Several deer have been seen in the Highland district of Winchester in the past week, but to be caught they come from the Middlesex Fells.

INJUNCTION ASKED FOR IN SHOE STRIKE

Judge Loring, in the Supreme Court today was asked by Walton N. Ingalls company, shoe manufacturers of Lynn and Chelsea, to issue an injunction against Henry Baker and other members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union of Chelsea.

The concern wants members of the union ordered from establishing pickets around the Chelsea plant and "interfering with the employees in going to and from the shops." Judge Loring issued an order of temporary restraint pending a hearing.

The shoe company states in its petition that it has suffered by the strike called by the Lynn factory because another union is trying to force the company to introduce a device in his factory, and that on October 2 a bomb was thrown into the yard. Two subscribers also joined the strikers. The bomb exploded here and only a boy named Sullivan and son of its employees came back.

The company states that some of its present employes have been assaulted or molested.

BIG SALE ON AT F. VORENBERG'S

As a proof of the over-anxious zeal of these friends to get into their store, the big plate glass from windows of F. Vorenberg & Co., No. 15 Winter street, have been broken at least a half dozen times within the past ten years by the crowds as they pressed around.

To-day as large crowds as ever are hovering around the tempting display windows, for the Vorenberg firm is this week conducting its anniversary sale, and selling in this way the seventeenth quarter-ly sale of the establishment of the Novelty Store.

To make the week the more memorable to the customers special lines of desirable novelties in jewelry and many other lines of small goods are being offered at bargain rates by the firm.

F. Vorenberg & Company claim that their location, on a small corner in a side square, exact dealing, built up a large and well as permanently profitable business, increasing business from year to year, which is proof found by mail order customers, and that rather than any exception be taken, the complaint is run down and rectified.

"WHAT'S THE USE?" IS SUICIDE'S FAREWELL

GALLIPOLIS, O., Nov. 25.—Dr. O. S. Hall, a director in the Ohio Valley Electric Works. They had charged that Baker, who is also a director in the Lynn Gas and Electric Light Works, had used his influence as chairman of the Board of Public Works to prevent the removal of electric pole opposite the Central Fire Station on Broad street, and that record books of the Board of Public Works were improperly kept.

ROPE BREAKS, HURLS 4 MEN FROM STAGING

Four carpenters and painters were hurt in Chelsea today when the staging on which they were working fell fifteen feet from the ground fell through the breaking of a rope.

The injured men are Hyman Fisher of No. 51 Leverett street, Boston; Samuel Goldstein of No. 181 Second street, Chelsea; Samuel Cohen of No. 56 West Cedar street, Boston, and Pat Done Jusgure of No. 29 Spring street, Chelsea.

They were working on a new house at No. 78 Spring street when the staging went down with a crash, pulling the men, tools and paraphernalia in a heap. A crowd gathered and there was much excitement. The victims were conducted from the debris and sent to the Marine Hospital.

Word from the hospital a little later was that none of the men were badly shaken up and that it was not known yet whether any had sustained internal injuries. The five will probably be out in a few days.

FAST GREEN HORSE MAY BE RETIRED

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The sale recently of crystallion to W. E. D. Stokes of this city means that the patrons of the Empire City race track will have the opportunity of seeing the wonderful green horse in action. Mr. Stokes changes his mind. He has announced that the son of Axtell is to be retired and along with Prince Ormond at Pattern Wilkes Farm, and that he will not even decide to give him a race mark, though he does not intend to retire him. Originally the property of Futurity, winning daughter of Axtell, and a brother to W. Stout of Versailles. Then Beach, a master trainer, drove him a mile in 2:07 and won with ease. Mr. Stokes paid close to $14,000 for him.

NEVER WORE SOCKS; BUT LEFT $250,000

WINSTED, Ct., Nov. 24.—Aaron Bostock, an eccentric New Britain man, who died last month, left nearly $250,000, according to his will, just probated. He did not believe in wearing socks, and for half a century he went without them.

The greater portion of his money was invested in gilt edge securities.

BOWERMAN MAY LEAD THE DOVES

It's pretty certain Joe Kelley will not be manager of the Boston Nationals next year.

The Toronto Club of the Eastern League wants Joe, and wants him bad. He won a championship two years ago and last season the team lost money, and now Toronto says they want Kelley back.

At the annual Eastern League meeting President Dovey of the Boston team was confronted President McCaffrey of the Toronto team and wanted to know why he was having reports circulated to the effect that Kelley would be manager of his team next season.

McCaffrey felt pretty sure of his ground and Dovey told him if he felt so sure of it that Kelley he could have him and he would not interfere with Dovey's decision.

The Toronto Club offered to assume the contract which Kelley had with Dovey, and stated they would give a bond if necessary, Dovey did not want the bond and said Toronto could take Kelley and welcome, as he was not the man he was two years ago.

Toronto pulled out in disgust, as did Buffalo and Providence, leaving the league in a bad way.

Dovey refused to do, but with the sanction of Dovey to go ahead he did not sign Kelley.

Dovey on his part said Kelley that he was free to negotiate with the Toronto Club if he was so disposed and Kelley immediately wired that he would be on hand to-day. He is a straight player on the level, and if he decides to move on the level for the Toronto Club Dovey has no objection of disposing of him anyway he thinks fit, but he does not want to be a party to any deal between the club and Kelley.

Kelley will be home to-day from the South and will confer with Dovey, as the club was so notified by a telegram.

But who will be in Kelley's place as manager is not known, but big Frank Bowerman is spoken of as the man.

FLYNN BEATS BAT JOHNSON

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—Bill Flynn, the fighting fireman and Battling Johnson fought ten hard rounds at Mechanic's auditorium to-night, the latter getting the start, although Johnson outweighed him thirty pounds. Flynn nearly finished the Batter in the eighth, but the bell saved Johnson. Johnson showed better than in his previous fights, but was still quite a novice. Both men landed hard and often, but neither could land a knockout. Flynn was given the decision on points.

BAT NELSON GOES FREE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—The complaining witness against "Battling" Nelson, a prize fighter, who was arrested yesterday charged with resisting an officer, did not appear in court and the case against the fighter was dismissed.

Thanksgiving Day sports, including full accounts of the Staple-Ketchel fight and the Cornell-Pennsylvania football games, will be published in a special edition of the BOSTON AMERICAN on Friday. On sale everywhere. There will be no editions of the BOSTON AMERICAN on Thursday (Thanksgiving Day).

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

Frank Smith seems to have the right idea. Finding himself in Brooklyn, and he not being traded or farmed out, he said he: Well, I don't care a darn, I'll play ball.

Steele stands a mighty fine chance of shining in the outfield with the Boston Nationals next year. Steele was pitcher after he served 18 months in the army, and he was a good one, but he developed a sore arm and had to quit. Then Steele went to the outfield and got into fast company and now it will be useless for him to try to get into the box, as he will become eligible for the draft.

Jack Aeson claims he was born thirty years too soon. He is out on the coast playing baseball, running auto and motor boat 500. Now Aeson says he is going to quit baseball and go into the stage as a star in "Ben Hur." Aeson says he is going to give away tickets, Mike Donlin and Joe Tinker will not interfere with Aeson.

Any time a ball player wants to point to a good year, such as world series wins, he lets a sore special teeth in the schools to go to the dentist and have them pulled out. After all this former fad made a big attraction when he showed the world of Grand Rapids fans. He had two years of minor league salary, and now he will be a member of the Boston Nationals without ever looking at his "O."

Jimmy Burke, the White Cross, shortstop of the Athletics for six years, member of two championship teams, and manager of the Boston Braves in the American Association, has taken up the umpiring game.

Youngstown, Ohio, contains quite a baseball family in Manager Joe Kelley and his brother, catcher Charles Hemphill of New York, shortstop Bill Hallman of Philadelphia, Lee and Wilbert Mathewson of Buffalo, and Curly Hoont, Bobby Woods and Jack Ryan.

Dave Brain, the one-armed ball player, will be the umpire in the game at the Stadium between the boys including his right along, and under the rules of the game he will be allowed to play second. He believes that he will be back in the game next year.

Hans Lobert was the only member of the Cincinnati team who was not traded or released by Manager Clark. Lobert won't be traded, for he is a favorite with the fans.

Frank Isbell, the new player, was gathering evidence against Manager Joe Cantillon when Mogridge could prove his position with the Club owner by handing him a letter from Isbell. He had his money to take presence," said Isbell.

Jack Taylor, who left the ranks of the Boston Red Sox to play baseball in Canada, is now trying to get back into the National League. He has been trying to get back into the National League. He has been trying to get back into the National League. He has been

SHIP CRIPPLED IN SEA CRASH REACHES PORT

HELPLESS FIFTEEN DAYS

One of the most remarkable stories of the sea is being told to the members of the crew of the British ship Timandra, which has just arrived at this port.

The men recount their hairbreadth escape in a crash with the steel steamer Spartan Prince, which resulted in sending the latter vessel to the bottom and opened up the sailing vessel until it seemed almost a miracle that she, too, did not founder.

The steel hulkhead, with which the ship was provided, proved her salvation and kept her afloat long enough to reach Barbadoes, where she put in so badly crippled that there who saw her wondered how she ever remained on top of water.

All went well until August 29. The ship was then in the vicinity of the equator and was bowling along with almost all of her sails set. When about 2 o'clock in the morning the lights of a steamer were made out.

The vessels approached each other rapidly, but there was no thought of impending danger. Without the slightest warning so it seme of the ship says, the steamer, which proved to be the Spartan Prince, crashed bound from New York for Buenos Ayres, swung across the Timandra's bow.

There was deafening sound of tearing metal and breaking spars, which brought every one to the decks of both vessels.

The Spartan Prince had received her death blow and the fight by her crew to keep her afloat was unavailing, for she foundered off the Brazilian coast, carrying to the bottom her valuable cargo.

For fifteen days the Timandra crept along with those on board praying that no serious gale would be met. Then she limped into Barbados.

THEFT OF FISH DEEP MYSTERY

The waterfront police, the captain and crew of the fishing schooner Albert W. Black are trying to puzzle out the most serious theft of two carts of fish, containing 100 pounds, from the cargo of the vessel and dumping them into the sea.

It is the boldest case of thieving on the pier in years, they say, and it is a mystery how a stranger could do such a trick without being detected.

Children

are never cross and irritable without a cause! Perfect nervous system is disordered by impure and ill-digested food; your child starr and mutter in its sleep; frowns, twitches and feet twitch or move with spasmodic jerks? Then beware of St. Vitus Dance and other forms of nervous trouble! Weak, nervous children are handicapped in life's battle. St. Vitus Dance may cloud a child's whole future.

Dr. Greene's NERVURA

is always a safe and efficient remedy for children's diseases. There is nothing more certain than what Dr. Greene's Nervura cures St. Vitus Dance and all kindred troubles.

Dr. Greene is the expert in Dr. Greene's Nervura and the well-known medical letters and counsel specialist in all nervous and chronic diseases. He is still in active practice and after over 30 years of successful work in his profession, is more sought after by the sick to-day than ever before.

Dr. Greene may be consulted free, either by letter or personally, at his Office, 34 Temple Pl., Boston, Mass.

Butler's Window Display That Marks New Era in Decoration

Window Display at W. S. Butler & Co. at No. 90 Tremont street, showing new panel effects.

A novel and exceedingly effective solution of the problem of showing effectively goods in window displays has been adopted by the W. S. Butler & Co., at No. 90 Tremont street, along the line of an Innovation in vogue at Meyberg's, New York.

A false background of grained oak panelling, about six feet high, has been built while the old flooring of the windows have been overlaid by a sectional flooring.

When it is desired to show the detail of a garment, a bonnet or by contrast to bring out vividly the richness of shade, the panel directly back of the goods is re-moved, the section of the flooring taken out, and draped with the contrasting material. The result is enhanced detail and a presentation of exact line. When it is necessary to show the contour mirrors instead of draped panels can be inserted.

In the evening an array of Ernst lights, affording a soft diffusion without distracting shades, will be scattered on so that the delicate tones of goods in all lights may be complete as if in the possession of the spectator. The system of lighting is concealed from the street by a hood of black stranded across the window. The light falls directly upon the goods, which, with the contrasting tinted panels and floor-ing, are in almost startling distinctness.

Spokes of the Hub

Edward H. O'Connor, of No. 185 Poplar street, East Cambridge, a chauffeur, at the Somerville Hospital, previously injured in a runabout accident, died of his injuries at the corner of Cherry and Hall streets.

John T. Scanlon has been given two years for larceny of money from his former employer, Abraham Gunsenheimer, a South Market street provision dealer. Scanlon fled to New York, but recently surrendered himself to the police.

Two freight locomotives crashed on the main line of the B. & A. just west of the Allston station and while the two were smashed up considerably the firemen and engineers on both escaped.

Phillip M. Springer, who, with Captain Harvey C. Daly of the schooner Fredita, is accused of attempting to smuggle Chinamen from Mexico to the United States, has been released on bail.

Mrs. Anna Whitten of No. 98 West street, Medford, is suffering from injuries received by being caught in the door of an elevated train at the North Station.

She is at the Relief Hospital.

Independent bronze of Hugo, Mrs. Agnes Rostarick of No. 108 Hampden street, Roxbury, resorted suicide by taking gas. The woman's body is at the city morgue.

Does It Do The Work?

Soap that does is cheap. Soap that does not, is dear.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap DOES THE WORK.

A five cent cake of P. & G. Naphtha Soap will last longer and do more work than two bars of ordinary laundry soap, costing, say, 3½ cents each; or three bars of cheap soap costing 2½ cents apiece.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is the cheapest soap you can buy—because it is the best value.

It saves time; and time is money.

It saves labor; and labor is worth money.

It saves clothes; and clothes cost money.

The naphtha in it LOOSENS the dirt; the soap CLEANSES.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is so much better than any other laundry soap that it is worth your while to go ten blocks out of your way to get it.

PROCTER & GAMBLE CO. NAPHTHA SOAP

But it is not necessary to do that—it is almost a certainty that your grocer sells it.

5 Cents a Cake—Worth More.

DOG SOUNDED BURGLAR ALARM

John B. Hicks, treasurer of the town of Westport saved the town funds by his quick wit. He had been awakened by the barking of his dog and, hastily dressing and seizing his revolver started on an investigation. He discovered two men in the room where the safe was located and opened fire on the pair as they made their escape.

The appearance of the room in which the town safe is kept indicated that the thieves had planned to blow it open.

GET SHUMAN TURKEYS.

The usual distribution of Vermont turkeys took place in the Shuman corner today through the generosity of A. Shuman & Co., by which several hundred married men will benefit. Among the annual appearances between employers and employes the Thanksgiving feast stands only second to the Christmas festivity.

'THE FIGHTING HOPE'

A gripping, fascinating novel of up-to-the-hour metropolitan life, based on the powerful American drama by William J. Hurlbut.

By BLANCHE BATES.

THE picture of shame and despair, Granger stood staring at him. At last he tried to set right the thing which never could be set right; tried to explain away and ally or beg himself back into his wife's heart.

"Well, I—er—" he began, fumbling his words. "I want to apologize about Rose—Rose—Rose Panchon. She—er, I was wrong, Anna. I——" He saw he was on the wrong track and thought to mitigate, ignorant man that he was, guilt by way though. "When I was up there last night I—I—I—" He saw he was on the wrong course to use the word. "I—I—I—" He laughed at him—he said you were one with Temple. Even that was not to be said. Well, of course, I shouldn't let him see that!

Anna stood staring at him, her eyes wild, cold, scornful, compassionless of all the horrible things he was humiliating himself to say to her. Granger thought he was making an impression.

"I won't ask you a question," he went on, magnanimously. "I won't say anything. I won't ask you how far it's gone. I'll overlook—we're both of us——"

He grinned in weak, cringing fashion. "It'll be all right?"

Anna, with a low, terrible cry, Anna stepped toward him, she caught herself. "You shameful——" she said, with all the fearful contempt that she felt for him in her face.

"You Win, Anyhow"

Granger saw he had lost, and with the loss of the game went the last of his nerve also.

"Don't! Don't, Anna! Forgive me for——"

He sank on his knees, sobbing at her feet.

"Shut up," she said. "Get up. I don't want you to do that. I can't talk to you for the moment for disgust. And to think I listen to you! To think I take testimony! It is my own fault, and I'll never be fooled and what was done with——"

"My God, don't!" cried Granger hoarsely. "It's your disgrace, or his, not on the——"

"For a moment," she went on, as if unheeded me. That moment I promised to forgive him for you, because you were boys' father. I had come to that unthinkingly, without knowing. You were one to me.

"Now you offered to buy me by sympathy with the money that you found. Rose Panchon. You took for granted that I was something to be bought. You thought I was selling your children's mother's honor!"

"Stop, stop, what a thing you have made me! Stop this! I'll send you back to Rose and keep your friend. I'll not tell the truth!"

Granger at last into a corner like a rat. Granger turned.

"You've driven against me, to be sneered. "Why will you testify against me? Why will you tell the truth? Why will you tell anything? I'm not for him. I was safe in prison. You managed to get me out. Why can't you stand by me, or, I'll stir it up. It would be a good story for the papers. They're on to my——"

Anna, with a withering triumphant, complete and craven entered.

"If you're on to my dishonor, do you think I'll stand by you? Do you? Well—can you afford to give them your testimony? Will the jury will accept your word against mine? Will they accept your word against mine? Will they accept your word against mine? Will they

A Curious Problem of Matrimony

By DOROTHY DIX

DOROTHY DIX.

THIS week's mail has brought me a letter from a man who has been married for ten years, and who is in a state of mind bordering on distraction because he has just discovered that his wife has been deceiving him all that time.

Mr. Brown, when he was courting Miss Smith, was a poor young man, and he was obliged to work hard for a living. He was also obliged to practise the most rigid economy, and he denied himself everything that he could do without in order to save money with which to buy his wife-to-be a home and all the pretty things that a young bride loves.

Mrs. Brown, when she was Miss Smith, was a beautiful girl, and she had many admirers, but she refused them all and married Brown because she knew that he loved her devotedly and that he would be a kind husband to her.

Mrs. Brown was not mercenary, and she never cared or thought about money, but she could take pride in her husband's success, and she was ambitious for him.

Brown was a man of fine mind and of great ability, and he soon began to forge ahead in his profession. He made a little money, and he and his wife moved into a better house and they began to entertain their friends.

Mrs. Brown was a beautiful woman, and she was a brilliant conversationalist, and she made her husband's home a delightful place to which his friends loved to come.

Brown was very much in love with his wife, and he was very proud of her, and he was glad to spend money on her, and he took pleasure in seeing her dressed in the height of fashion.

Mrs. Brown was a woman of the world, and she knew that a man's success depends largely on his wife, and that she can help him or hinder him, and she was very careful to make friends for her husband, and to please his employers and his clients.

Brown's practice increased by leaps and bounds, and he was soon making a large income, and he and his wife lived in luxury.

Then Brown was taken with a severe illness, and the doctors ordered him to a warmer climate, and Mrs. Brown went with him, and remained with him during his convalescence.

Brown was away from his business for six months, and when he returned to it he found that his wife had been managing it in his absence, and that she had made a success of it.

Mrs. Brown had a head for business, and she had taken hold of Brown's affairs with the same energy and ability that she had displayed in managing her own household affairs, and she had increased the income by one-third.

Brown was delighted with his wife's achievements, and he was grateful to her for relieving him of the worry of business, and he was proud of her, and he loved her more than ever.

Mrs. Brown was a woman of fine feelings, and she was very sensitive to criticism, and she knew that her husband's friends were talking about her behind her back, and that they were saying that she was a shrew and a virago, and that she had driven her husband to the wall by her nagging and her extravagance.

Mrs. Brown knew that this was not true, and she was very much hurt by it, and she was also very much puzzled to know why her husband's friends should misjudge her so cruelly.

She thought that perhaps they were jealous of her husband's success, and that they were trying to make trouble between them, and she was very much distressed.

Then Brown, who was a man of few words, and who was not given to confidences, told her that his friends were not blaming her for his success, but that they were pitying him because he had married a woman who was unfit to be a helpmeet to a man of his ambitions and aspirations.

Brown told his wife that he had married her because he loved her, and because he thought that she loved him, but that he had since found out that she had married him because she thought that he was a rising young man, and that she had deceived him as to her character and her motives.

Brown told his wife that he had found out that she was a heartless coquette, who had married him for his money, and that she had been carrying on a flirtation with another man all the time that she was engaged to him, and that she had continued it after her marriage

The Little Juggler and His Sensitive Hands

It Might Pay to Take the Same Care of Our Brains

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal Examiner

The juggler was standing in the baggage room of the railroad station watching the men shuffle about his belongings. He was a nervous and irritable little juggler, with black, beady eyes, the brownish-yellow skin that is common to all Japanese, a flat nose and straight, bristly black hair.

The baggage, which was in queer, bulky boxes, was dragged about the room in a fashion not at all to his liking.

"Please have a take-care," he said sharply. "It must not be what you call 'smash.' It is the worth of much money."

The baggageman looked up in surprise. "This yours?" he said gruffly to the juggler.

"Yes, thank you," politely replied the Japanese. "It is to be used softly, please, and with courtesy. It can be broke with the ease of eggs."

"Then handle it yourself," snapped the baggageman, withdrawing a box hook from one of the precious crates. "Put it on board the train yourself if you don't like the way we're doin' it."

"That may not be done," said the juggler. "I am not to use my hand, not one little bit. I spoil her for the juggling."

A bystander questioned the juggler, who, after an agony of excited watching, at last saw his parcels all safely stowed away in the baggage car.

He explained, very politely, that even if the boxes and their contents had been destroyed before his eyes he couldn't, with his own hands, have taken part in transferring them.

His hands, he said, were his living. Upon the perfect condition of the fingers depended the success of every one of the remarkable feats for doing which he is highly paid.

To get them in their present perfect shape has taken years of patient training, seven, eight, ten hours of practice every day.

The straining of one muscle, the abrasion of a single finger tip might mean failure in some particularly difficult feat, and after one or two failures at a public performance a juggler ceases to be in demand by managers.

So the little Japanese took as much care of his hands as a pianist bestows upon his. He encased them in big warm mittens in cold weather, rubbed them many times a day with alcohol, and, so that the nerves which control them might not be impaired, he carefully abstained from the use of alcohol, except for this one purpose.

With ordinary individuals extreme anxiety about the condition of the hands and too much fear lest they be put to hard work indicate a soft head. The average man who has his hands manicured daily is seldom as careful of his intelligence as he is of his finger nails.

But we ask you to observe that this juggler was very wise in taking the best of care of that which he needed most in his life—upon which, in fact, he was dependent for his living.

Barring jugglers and musicians and sleight-of-hand performers and artists and stenographers, it matters not a great deal to people whether their hands are always soft and sensitive.

But it does matter, and it matters a great deal, to every human being whether his BRAIN has the best sort of care.

Jugglers and sleight-of-hand performers—if they happen to be the best or nearly the best in their callings—can make very good incomes. The possibilities of trained muscles and nerves working together at the bidding of the brain with that beautiful precision that we call perfect co-ordination are very great.

But the possibilities of the brain are far greater—we are centuries away from knowing how great they are.

We have told the story of the juggler because it suggests a very important lesson.

Idleness, coarse employment or foolish waste of energy upon useless things acts upon the mind exactly as rough work acts upon delicate fingers. They blunt perceptions. They destroy keenness. They make concentration upon important duties impossible.

The men whose life stories are worth reading have taken the same care of their minds as this little Asiatic entertainer takes of his hands. After spending years on proper training and discipline they make sure that nothing mars the results of that training.

It takes no longer to make a money-earning and success-compelling set of brains than it does to train a money-earning pair of juggling hands. Men who are doing something really worth while in the world are far more common than jugglers.

BUT IT TAKES EXACTLY THE SAME KIND OF CARE.

Use your brains as the juggler uses his hands—reverently, and as if they were worth caring for.

Remember that they are your weapons, that upon their condition depends your success or your downfall. Think whether this or that indulgence, this or that idleness will injure them. Consider before cultivating a scientific game of pool or a profound knowledge of "past performances" whether that sort of thing will be of any assistance to your mental development.

A great deal depends, of course, upon the kind of brains you were born with. But the ordinary brain, used to its full capacity, will outdistance a far greater brain, half used.

ARE BOSTON SCHOOLS NEGLECTING FUNDAMENTALS?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

When the nominations for School Committee about to be made, is it not timely to call a pause or spade and stop defeating the ends for which a belief that the Boston schools are "par excellence"?

In the excellent report recently known to all business men and teachers, and make a study of the teaching of our children, it promises that attention will be given to the fundamentals of education, viz: arithmetic, reading and writing.

It seems to be admitted on visiting the girls graduates of our Boston grammar schools, morning tests or examinations, who can figure mentally or otherwise, even possibly, who can write correctly, or spell properly.

If parents were to realize the conditions which exist they would surely demand a change made in the list of studies, either to make room for the three R's, or it would see that enough time was applied to the teaching of those subjects.

What is to become of our business interests when our own children are spending their time in the study of impracticable fads and the fundamentals are being neglected? Are we to depend on the graduates of private schools or on the graduates of suburban schools?

Some teachers will inform you that, theoretically, the High School of Commerce is to supply the demands of the business interests, but are those who from the necessity of completing their education in the grammar schools to be denied any chance of advancement and from lack of teaching be compelled to act as the hewers of wood and drawers of water?

Is this fair to the parents who are making sacrifices to allow their children to complete a grammar school education and who are blissfully ignorant of the changes inaugurated of late years?

I have good reason to know the advantages of having been taught these studies and know full well how equipped our boys and girls are after being graduated. Conditions have changed since I was allowed but a grammar school education, as I learned on visiting a school and found not its graduates fitted for business life. For the credit and pride in my old school I will not mention facts I learned there, except to say that they were unable to give me a boy to write well, spell properly or use rule to figure correctly.

Don't it be the duty of the newspapers to agitate this timely question, place the matter before the prospective candidates, and bring them to a realizing sense of the importance of a change in the children's studies?

If by any chance you deem it advisable to publish this letter, I will make a simple request to omit my signature and use "Business Man," as I do not care for any publicity. I am not a candidate nor have any candidate in mind, but a sense of duty prods me to call these facts to your attention, hoping thereby for a better condition of affairs later.

"BUSINESS MAN."

What a Woman Can Do

Dr. Emily Noble Has Proved Her Right to the Title and Done a Vast Service for Public Health

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal Examiner

THERE are few people in America to-day who do not respect and admire the woman physician; few who do not accept her as a needed factor in the world of progress. And there are comparatively few who realize all the anguish and suffering of soul and body which the pioneers in this path of usefulness were made to endure.

Ridicule, abuse, misconstruction, insults, all were given the first women physicians, when they set forth in the new field of industry.

The men doctors barred their way, with a few shining, noble exceptions; while mothers, daughters and sisters, who should have realized the blessing which must come to humanity by the ministering of women physicians, frowned upon them as unsexed outcasts, beyond the pale of "good society."

But all that is ancient history, even though it occurred not so long ago.

In the last two decades the woman physician has found her place in the hearts and homes of the people, and in the respect of that august and conservative body of "regular school" M. D.'s.

What One Has Done

At the late International Congress of Physicians Dr. Emily Noble made an address and introduced her special method for the prevention of tuberculosis, or, as Mrs. Noble calls it, "first aid in better lung development of children."

Mrs. Noble, in order to obtain the interested attention of this body of men, went about her work with businesslike precision and common sense methods. She made the acquaintance of the leading throat specialist in Washington, D. C. Then she obtained a "living exhibit" in the shape of a girl of fifteen who was a nervous wreck through catarrhal headaches and anemia.

In two weeks' time Mrs. Noble completely cured this girl, under the critical eyes of the specialist, by training her in nasal hygiene and rhythmic breathing. Catarrhal headache and nervousness all disappeared, and with them the appearance of anemia. The girl rounded out in face and form, and was made well.

Before this treatment the child was examined by the surgeon-general, and she was again examined after the two weeks of training, and the cure was pronounced a success under these strict test conditions.

Had Made No Failures

Naturally, this gave Mrs. Noble the ear of the conservatives. Her system of training children to breathe has been adopted in all the schools of the District of Columbia.

Think once what that means for the poor little victims of our badly conducted public school system! For nine children out of every ten, who attend public schools, sit, stand and breathe improperly, and usually lose what natural powers of concentration they enjoy with them before they reach the third school year.

Some important and influential Boards of Health are also interested in Mrs. Noble's work, and she is making a supreme effort to obtain the ear and attention of the New York Board of Health.

Mrs. Noble has made no failures in any of her test cases so far, and she has already twelve thousand converts to her system of preventing (and in first and second stages curing) consumption. Ten thousand of these converts have been taught free, and by the sale of her books and magazine articles Mrs. Noble has been able to live, while she made her way patiently to the front.

Mrs. Noble learned her Science of Breathing while practising medicine in India; for with all the poverty which exists in that land, tuberculosis and catarrhal diseases are almost unknown because correct breathing is practiced there daily by all classes.

Lesson From India

India has need of American ideas, to help, it becomes more practical, and to break the fetter of Mohammedan superstition, which stunt the development of its women and children; but we need the knowledge of India in some other matters, particularly correct breathing.

It was a benefit to India when Dr. Emily Noble went there to practice medicine; it has proven a blessing to America that she came back with the wisdom she obtained there. When she reaches New York it is to be hoped that every mother and teacher and philanthropist in the city will give her attention.

And may every physician honestly interested in the better health of the world and in the saving of the growing generation from the White Plague welcome her.

She comes as an Angel of Light, with the Torch of Wisdom in her hand. Her message is simple and available for all classes—a message of proper breathing.

Though you may not hear her deliver it or read her book, you can breathe, with every cell in your lungs, every hour in the day.

The choicest of Ella Wheeler Wilcox's poems and the most entertaining of her famous prose articles appear exclusively each week in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. Her contribution to next Sunday's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is of especial interest—one that you can't afford to miss.
